DECREES

ART. 1 – SELECTION FOR AWARDING 1 (ONE) RESEARCH SCHOLARSHIP

This document announces the selection process AdR4490/23 to award 1 (ONE) research scholarship in the disciplinary sectors L-ANT/04 NUMISMATICS and L-ANT/07 CLASSICAL ARCHAEOLOGY, to perform the research on the topic "The Roman Emperor Seen from the Provinces (ERC RESP 101002763)".

RESP is a five-years project that will investigate how Roman emperors were represented (on portraits and in full-figure) in the western and in the eastern provinces of the Empire, between the reign of Augustus and that of Diocletian (c. 31 BC – AD 297). The research considers all the visual media that propagated the imperial image, but focuses primarily on local coinage and sculpture (in the round and in relief). The study of provincial iconography and especially of provincial portraiture involves a systematic survey of all the available evidence and the collation of an extensive set of data in digital format from publications and from museum collections. This is a collaborative work carried out by a large team researchers (academics, post-docs and one PhD student), based in Verona, London and Coventry (Warwick), under the PI's lead (principal investigator).

The holder's main tasks will be to:

- a) undertake a sustained study of Roman imperial portraiture of the Severan and post-severan periods in the provinces as part of the RESP project team;
- b) to enter all the data gathered from Roman provincial coinage and sculpture into the RESP project database;
- c) to write a report of the work done by the end of the appointment.

The research, based on the combined evidence of sculpture and coinage from the provinces, will investigate the genesis, transmission and spread of Roman imperial portraits in the provinces. The researcher's work will contribute to the definition of the first typological study or Roman provincial portraits based on a geographical survey of the surviving evidence within a specific period of production, within the Third century AD. It is expected that this study will reveal the range of regional choices and the similarities and differences between centre and periphery in the genesis and production of provincial portraits. It will also examine the known distribution patterns of portraits across the empire and the possible underlying mechanisms as well as the broader social and cultural framework in terms of display context and individual agency. The successful candidate will work in symbiosis with the PI Dario Calomino and the other RESP team members in every aspect of the project – sharing the provisional and final results of her/his research within the RESP team, working as part of the group to test, implement and refine the established RESP research methodology.

Candidates are expected to have a PhD in Numismatics, preferably on one of the themes investigated by the RESP.

Project, or in Classical Art and/or Archaeology with a thesis on a topic related to the study of Roman portraiture and/or iconography also on the basis of coinage.

Further desirable research criteria are:

- A) PhD thesis' on and/or previous work experience (including Degree and Specialisation thesis) in the study of Roman provincial and/or imperial coinage
- B) PhD thesis' on and/or previous work experience (including Degree and Specialisation thesis) in the study of Roman portraiture
- C) Experience in cataloguing Roman coins
- D) Good knowledge of the English language, especially written
- E) Work experience as part of one or more collaborative projects.

The research scholarship is for twelve months, with the possibility of further renewals within the limits established by current legislation.
