RESEARCH INTERESTS

Alessandra Tomaselli has worked within the following research fields:

- a) Generative Grammar Theory;
- b) German syntax (from both a synchronic and a diachronic point of view);
- c) Second Language Acquisition;
- d) the interaction between the theory of grammar and language teaching;

- e) German linguistic islands in Northern Italy – Language contact;
- f) the history of grammatical concepts within the German tradition;
- g) Language Erosion and Language Evolution.

ORGANIZATION AND DIRECTION OF RESEARCH PROJECTS:

- in charge of the Verona research unit for the interuniversity project: "Continuation and variation in language tradition" (ex quota 40%). National coordinator: Prof. Renato Arena (University of Milan), 1996/'98; title of the Verona research unit: "Continuation and variation in the relationship between theoretical linguistics and language teaching".
- in charge of the Verona research unit for the interuniversity project co-financed by MURST: "Language variation: structures and use". National coordinator: prof. Alberto Mioni (University of Padua), 1998-2000; title of the Verona research unit: "Language islands as an example of syntactic variation with respect to Standard Languages: the case of Cimbrian"
- in charge of the Verona research unit for the interuniversity project co-financed by MURST: "History of grammar in Italy and Europe. Relationship between grammatical analysis and its application". National coordinator: prof. Claudio Marazzini (University of Piemonte Orientale), 2001-2003; title of the Verona research unit: "Felderanalyse as an interface between theory of grammar and description of German grammar"
- in charge for the research project co-financed by the Cariverona Foundation: "Cimbrian as a test case for synchronic and diachronic language variation" (2009-2011). The goal of this project is to collect, digitalize and tag linguistic data from the Cimbrian varieties (a German dialect spoken in the so called "Tredici Comuni" (VR) and "Sette Comuni" (VI) and in the small village Lusern (TN)).
- member of the European research project "Advancing the European Multilingual Experience" (AthEME) - FP7-SSH-2013-1 [Collaborative projects (Large Scale Integrated Research Projects)], project coordinator: prof. Lisa Lai-Shen Cheng, Leiden University, duration: 60 months (2014-2019).
- in charge of the Verona research unit for the interuniversity project PRIN 2017 "Models of language variation and change: new evidence from language contact", ERC SH4, scientific coordinator: prof. Maria Rita Manzini (University of Florence); title of the Verona research unit [Workpackage 3]: "Germanic varieties: Word order in the vP- and CP-phase".

DIRECTION OF RESEARCH FELLOWSHIPS

- Research project R 78/99. Period: October 1999 - October 2001; title: "The relationship between morphology and syntax in a Southern German dialect: the case of Cimbrian"; assignee of fellowship: dott.ssa Diana Pili;
- Research project R 291/02. Period: October 2002 - March 2006; title: "The syntax of dislocation in Cimbrian: comparison between the Germanic and the Romance model"; assignee: dott. Ermenegildo Bidese.

- Research Project AdR 1691/11. Period: October 2011 - October 2012; title: "Linguistic Database and Linguistic Maps: the visibility of Cimbrian varieties"; assignee of fellowship: dott. Andrea Padovan (co-financed by Fondazione Cariverona, bando 2008).
- Research Project AdR VR2312/14. Period: July 2014 - February 2017, title: "Regional Languages in Multilingual Europe: The Case of Germanic Minorities in the Northeast of Italy" assignee of fellowship: dott. Andrea Padovan (financed by ATHEME - Advancing the European Multilingual Experience, FP7-SSH-2013-1, project n. 613465).
- Research Project AdR 3072/18. Period: July 2018 – August 2020, title: "Studio di sintassi comparativa tedesco-italiano sulla base di un corpus parallelo bilingue di testi scritti turistici. Risvolti nel campo della traduzione"; assignee: Dott.ssa Rossella Resi.
- Research Project AdR 3474/20. Period: April 2020 - November 2020; title: "Raccolta e sistematizzazione dati isole germanofone del Friuli"; assignee: Dott. Francesco Zuin.
