Language of Instruction	French is the main language of instruction.
Language Requirements	In order to ensure that students complete their coursework successfully, a minimum of B1 proficiency level as defined by the Council of Europe is required to study at Nantes Université. Some departments require a B2 level or higher.  Only the Institute of French as a Foreign Language (i-FLE) accepts beginners in their program. Students planning to enroll in other faculties must provide proof of proficiency in French: either a certificate by the French department at their home university or an official French language test/certificate (DELF, DALF, TCF).  Since French embassies and consulates are now increasingly demanding proof of proficiency in French, students will need to verify the requirements when applying for their visa.
Academic Offer	Students' faculty of choice will depend on the agreements between their home university and Nantes Université.  Students are required to take at least 70% of the classes in a Faculty that has signed an agreement with their home university.  Students will be able to choose classes directly from our Incoming Exchange Students online class catalog.

French Support Classes for Exchange Students	Support classes are offered free of charge for exchange students and take place twice a week during the evening, usually from 6pm to 8pm. However, these classes aren't available for students enrolled in French semester courses at i-FLE.
	French Support classes allow students to receive up to 4 ECTS credits (2 for the oral and 2 for the written proficiency class).
	Students interested in taking French support classes must request them via the Mobility Online application.
Services Available to Exchange Students	University Libraries, Sport Centers, Computer Labs, University Health Services, Student Life Center, etc.

Visa and Entry Requirements

Are exchange students required to obtain a student visa?	Citizens from the European Union, the European Economic Area, Andorra, Monaco, San Marino, Switzerland, and the Vatican are not required to obtain a visa to study in France.  Foreigners residing in any of the previously mentioned territories are allowed to stay a maximum of 90 days in France. However, they must obtain a visa before coming to study in France.  Students who are part of the ERASMUS+ program but are not citizens of one of the above-mentioned entities must obtain a visa.  Citizens from countries that require a VISA to enter France must contact the French consulate or Campus France services in their country of residence at least 3 months before their departure to confirm visa requirements prior to their arrival.  Usually, if a student's mobility period in France lasts more than three months, she/he must obtain a long-term student visa before arrival in France.  We invite you to visit the official French Government for visa application to France: https://france-visas.gouv.fr/fr FR/web/france-visas
Are exchange students allowed to work?	The type of visa that students obtain before their arrival in France determines whether or not they are allowed to work. Students who are allowed to work in France must validate their visa or get their student residence permit before starting to work.
